

Florida Keys & Key West 2024 Affluent Traveler Brand Perception Research

Prepared for Florida Keys

Delivered October 2024

THE CLOSEST TO THE CUSTOMER WINS.

Project Overview

Purpose. The purpose of Affluent Traveler Brand Perception research is to determine how the Florida Keys & Key West (Florida Keys) resonate among affluent travelers nationwide, what impact (if any) the current economic climate has had upon affluent travelers' perception of the Florida Keys and how the Florida Keys have held up relative to other luxury destinations. Additionally, this study examines select key performance indicators among the target market of affluent travel households and compares them to a control group of average travelers nationwide.

Target Audience. This research was conducted among a general population (gen pop) cell of attraction visitors who live in the Florida Keys feeder markets including the following states: FL, NY, NJ, IL, TX, DC, MA, NC, SC, MI, NM, OH, CA, GA, and IN. Panel respondents were screened to ensure they are adult decision makers who have taken at least one leisure vacation in the past 12 months, with average household incomes of $150,000 and ages 30-64 years old.

Sample. A total of 800 responses were collected for this research providing for a maximum margin of error of +/- 3.5% at a 95% confidence interval.

A comparison cell of 242n gen pop travelers were also included by H2R for contextual comparisons as applicable. This control group of travelers included adults from any age group and household income level.

Where applicable, results are compared to H2R's Proprietary Industry Norms (H2R Norms) and any relevant past research for context.

- The Florida Keys has emerged as a formidable player in the luxury travel sector, quietly building a strong and resilient brand that resonates with affluent travelers nationwide. This success story is built on a foundation of the area's natural beauty, cultural richness, and strategic marketing efforts that have positioned the region as a top-tier travel destination.
- The average household income for the targeted Florida Keys' visitor is greater than $120,000 with nearly one-third of visitors (30%) earning more than $150,000 annually. As consumer buying power remains a concern, the Florida Keys wants to ensure they remain an appealing destination to affluent visitors & travel prospects and continue to be well-positioned and somewhat insulated against inflation and recessionary concerns experienced by travelers of lesser means.
- This study for the Florida Keys identifies key motivations and influences that impact affluent travel households' selection of travel destinations and how the Florida Keys compares to other luxury travel destinations. Additional focus highlights the motivations and barriers for travel to the destination, perception of the destination and intent to visit across consumer niches.

Key Takeaways

- Brand Strength and Perception. The Florida Keys & Key West reports strong top-of-mind consideration, ranking 9th among U.S. luxury destinations (and 6th among individual cities). Additionally, 88% of affluent travel prospects hold a positive opinion of the Florida Keys, 13% above the competitive set average. The Florida Keys & Key West are consistently described as a “tropical paradise” with a “relaxed atmosphere” and “unique culture and history” among affluent travel households.
- Effectiveness, Visitor Intentions and Past Visitation. The Florida Keys & Key West has strong share of voice, reporting 44% of affluent prospects recall marketing messages, leading all destinations in the competitive set. Half of travel prospects exhibit an intent to visit the area in the next 12 months (compared to 35% among the control group of all travelers) while 26% report having visited the Florida Keys in the past 3 years (versus 17% among the control group).
- Economic Resilience. More than three-quarters of prospects perceive the Florida Keys & Key West as unchanged or still offering good value despite recent economic conditions compared to just 23% who feel the current economy has made the Florida Keys somewhat less accessible for them (compared to 32% among the control group of all travelers). Similarly, more than half (52%) believe the Florida Keys & Key West offers higher value compared to similar luxury destinations (compared to 37% among the control group).
- Comparative Advantages. The Florida Keys & Key West also outperform other luxury destinations in its reputation for scenic beauty, culture, entertainment and hospitality.

Key Takeaways

- Areas for Improvement. Of course, there are a few areas that the Florida Keys & Key West could improve upon, including fine dining offerings. This is an amenity that has higher than average importance among affluent travel households but is not considered highly relatable to the Florida Keys, despite having a wide variety of offerings.
- Similarly, accessibility is both a positive and negative issue. That is, the Florida Keys is considered a positive issue for those living comparatively close in proximity and being a drivable destination in the mainland. But for those living farther away, being located in the extreme Southeast part of the U.S. is often perceived as being an inconvenient destination with comparatively few access points. Additionally, some non-visitors and lapsed visitors feel the area also lacks "must-see" activities and has a perception of limited variety of offerings for travelers that might compel them to visit or return.
- Political Considerations. While not vetted directly, the political climate of Florida also emerged as another barrier that exists for some affluent travelers in open-ended comments. While the political climate is not directly related to the Florida Keys & Key West's offerings, this external factor does apparently influence travel decisions and needs to be navigated carefully in marketing communications.
- Economic Adaptation Strategies. While this study focused primarily on affluent travelers, affordability is still a consideration among some travelers from the affluent niche (but 28% less of a derived barrier than the control group). A focus on affordable accommodations, creating memorable moments, and special offers to encourage repeat visits and sustain the longevity of the Florida Keys & Key West brand should be considered.

Considerations

- Culinary Focus: Invest in developing and promoting the region's fine dining scene. Consider partnering with renowned chefs, host food festivals, and create unique culinary experiences that leverage local ingredients and traditions.
- Accessibility Campaign: Work with airlines to increase direct flights to the region, if possible. Develop marketing materials that reframe the journey as part of the adventure, highlighting scenic drive options and unique stops along the way.
- Signature Experiences: Create and heavily promote a set of unique, "can't-miss" experiences exclusive to the Florida Keys. These could range from eco-adventures to cultural immersions, giving visitors compelling reasons to return.
- Value Proposition: Double down on messaging that emphasizes the region's value, particularly in comparison to other luxury destinations. Highlight all-inclusive packages and off-peak season deals to attract cost-conscious luxury travelers.
- Targeted Micro-campaigns: Develop a series of micro-targeted campaigns focusing on specific traveler interests (e.g., golf enthusiasts, water sports lovers, history buffs, etc.) to showcase the depth and breadth of offerings.
- Influencer Partnerships: Consider collaborating with (more) travel influencers and luxury lifestyle bloggers to create authentic content that showcases the Florida Keys & Key West's unique appeal to affluent audiences.

Considerations

- Sustainability Initiative: Launch a comprehensive sustainability program that preserves the natural beauty of the Florida Keys & Key West while appealing to environmentally conscious luxury travelers.
- Local Ambassador Program: Create a network of local ambassadors – from artists to business owners – who can provide insider tips and personalized experiences, adding depth to visitors' stays.
- Tech Integration: Develop a state-of-the-art app that serves as a personalized concierge, helping visitors discover hidden gems and manage their itineraries seamlessly.
- Continuous Feedback Loop: Implement a sophisticated customer feedback system to continuously refine offerings and address emerging concerns promptly.
